Schools Try To Compensate

You might be communicating with parents through emails, WhatsApp, text messages or other school applications etc. We can help you integrate all your engagements with your parents into a single channel, cutting out lost messages and saving you time. You also gain efficiency, safety, and security at your fingertips.

Studies have shown that parents engage on three levels of participation with their children's School

1 Participating parents are the few regulars that offer to help at school events

2 Involved parents are those who communicate with the teacher and provide valuable insight from their side; they are interested in how their ward's progress academically

3 Engaged parents become part of their child's educational journey and participate in building a successful school with high educational value and academic results.

Engaged parents are the kinds you want in your School. They are committed to their children's success and the success of your School, and together you prepare a generation to thrive in a modern world.
The #1 missing link in having engaged parents lies in an integrated communication system that brings all involved together in an accessible, hassle-free environment.
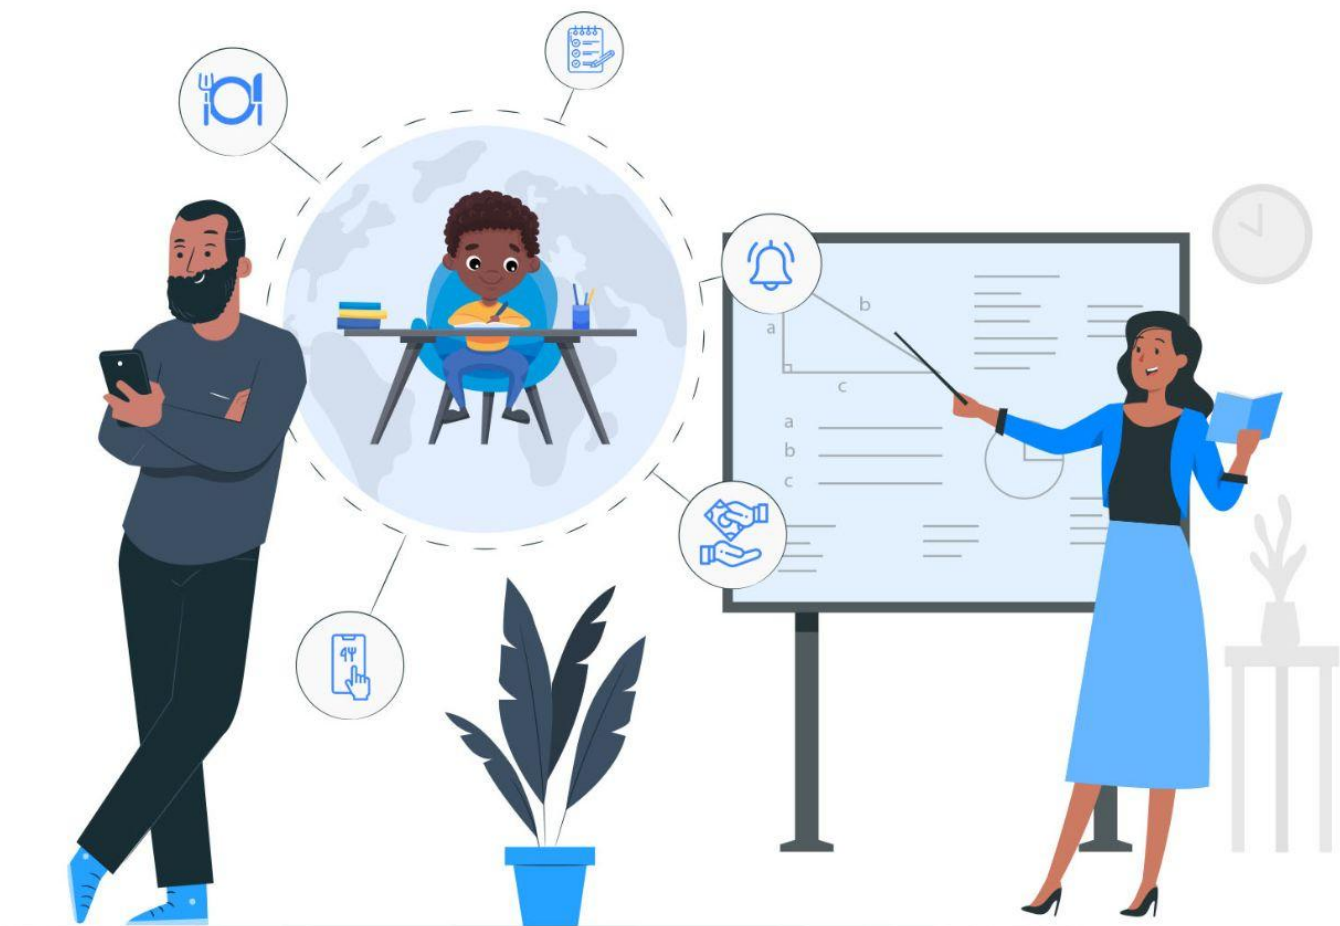

With open communication channels, you, your teachers, parents, and students stay updated with study needs and results, which in turn encourages everyone to participate in the educational journey.

In your care

Imagine the ability to alert every parent instantly when their child is dropped off or picked up from your school either by their spouse or someone else doing that on their behalf. For parents whose children check-in/check-out of school by themselves, it keeps them up to date when their children check in or check out of school. This reassures parents on the security of their children in your school.

AUTHORIZED PICKUP

NEVER SECOND GUESS YOURSELF

Make it easy for your staff or security to identify unknown persons picking up students from your school

A lot of parents due to their busy schedule are unable to pick up their children themselves. Hence the need to resort to using relatives, friends or taxi or uber drivers to do so on their behalf. Wouldn't it be safe and secure to ensure that all persons sent by parents are verified as authorised to pick up their children? This will eliminate the stress involved with your staff or security having to call parents to confirm the identity of unknown persons. You should never take chances with the security of children. You need to build a safety culture in your school. You might not know you need it until you actually need it. Avoid the tragedy of acting too late.

AVOID DELAYS

& Traffic Congestions within your school premises

Save parents time when picking up their children. There is only so much space and personnel you have to enforce order and eliminate chaos during peak pickup times in school.

What if parents could pre-alert a class teacher or admin anytime they set off to pick a child from your school? This will give your staff enough time to prepare children for a quick and easy pick up process when parents arrive. This will streamline the entire pick up process and ensure that parents do not need to get down from cars to fetch their children, and save you the trouble of announcing students' names over a PA system or radio walkie-talkies! The value is found in the ability of your staff to be notified ahead of time, to enable children to be readied for immediate pick up when their parents eventually arrive.
